

RSPCA report on animal outcomes from our shelters, care and adoption centres

2015-16

The RSPCA is Australia's oldest, largest and most trusted animal welfare organisation. With this privileged position comes great responsibility. This year we received¹ 137,391 animals into our animal shelters and adoption centres across the country.

We are pleased to report that over the past 10 years we have adopted out, reunited with their owners or released into the wild 701,943 animals. This includes 382,951 dogs/puppies and 246,928 cats/kittens that were adopted or reunited with owners.

Adoption and reclaiming rates nationally have been increasing over time and significant improvements in the outcomes for cats and dogs (including kittens and puppies) have been achieved. This can be attributed to the introduction of new approaches and programs to increase the number of animals adopted and reunited with their owners. These include highly-visible public initiatives as well as substantial work behind-the-scenes, such as:

- Extensive promotion of the wonderful animals we have available for adoption through www.adoptapet.com.au, social media, events and traditional media.
- Increasing community awareness and support for the value of adopting animals from shelters and rescue groups more broadly, including through media stories and events.
- Additional proactive and creative adoption initiatives, such as Valentine's Day promotions, promotions focusing on senior animals, and cats adopting a mum and kitten or two kittens together, adoption centres in shopping precincts and pet retail adoption partners including PetBarn.
- Working with smaller rescue groups to extend the reach of adoption initiatives.
- Providing services to reunite lost pets with their owners.
- Providing community and shelter-based desexing schemes to reduce the number of unplanned pregnancies and unwanted animals, including initiatives reaching pet owners experiencing financial hardship.
- Expanding foster care networks to cater for greater numbers of animals. Animals cared for in foster homes include pregnant animals, those with young litters, orphaned kittens and puppies, seniors, those with special needs, those recovering from surgery, those needing to build their confidence or requiring behavioural training in a home setting and those that don't cope well in a shelter environment.
- Dedicated behavioural trainers that put in place behavioural modification and management plans for animals requiring specialist support, and who also provide post adoption behavioural classes.
- Improvements in clinical veterinary care including isolation facilities and processes, in shelter disease management and surgical rehabilitation.
- Adoption follow up with new owners to ensure pets are settling into their new homes and owners are provided with additional information and referral to appropriate telephone or on-site support services.
- Community information, awareness raising and education targeting responsible pet ownership and working with local councils, strata committees and landlords to encourage support for pet ownership.
- Monitoring current research and investment in Australian-based research to ensure evidence-based approaches to animal welfare.

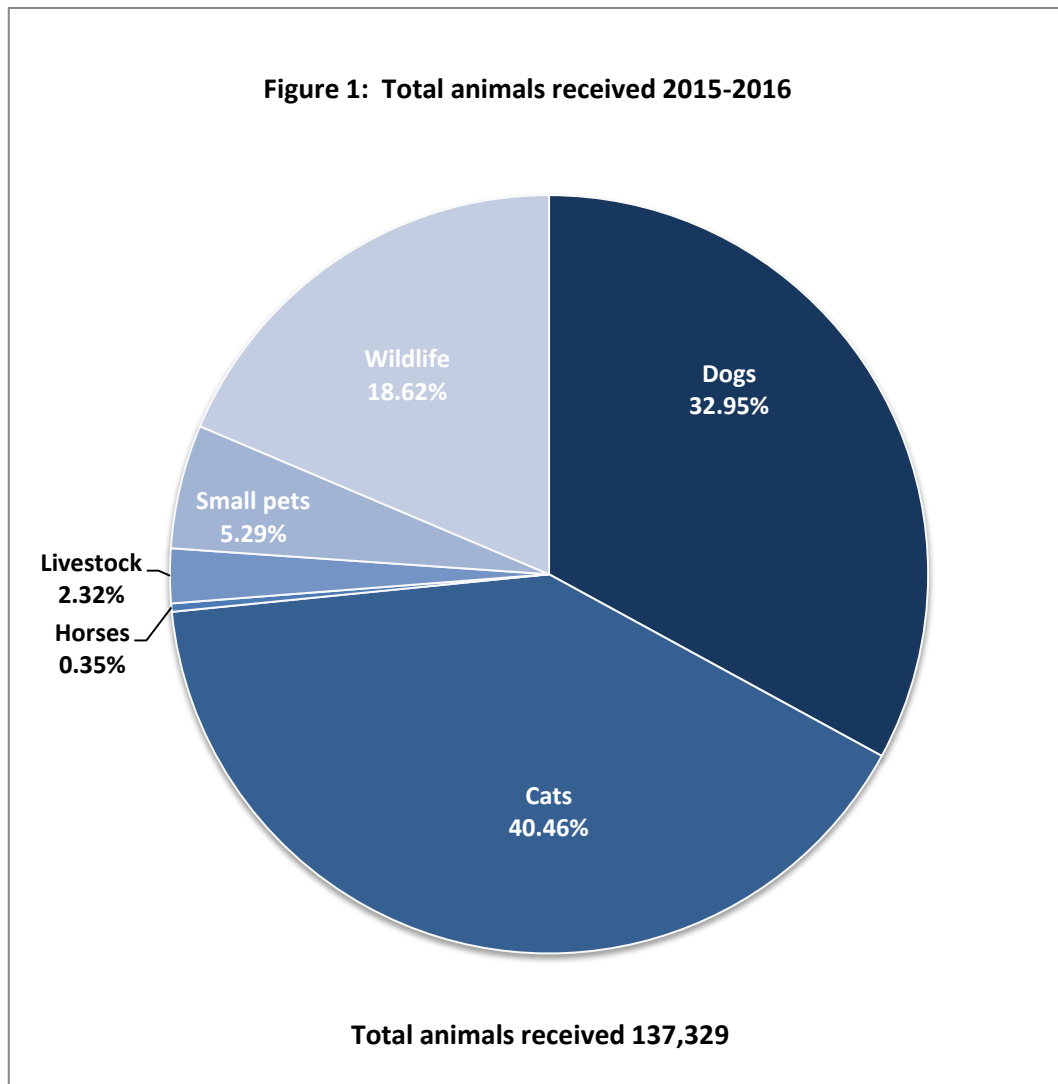

¹ Received throughout this report refers to all animals in RSPCA facilities during the 2015-2016 financial year.

- Passionate staff and volunteers who work tirelessly for the animals in their care.

All animals

In 2015-16, the RSPCA cared for 137,329 animals including 45,256 dogs, 55,570 cats, 485 horses, 3,188 livestock, 7,262 small pets (such as mice, rabbits, guinea pigs, birds, fish and ferrets) and 25,568 native and introduced wild animals such as wombats, kangaroos, possums and reptiles (see Figure 1).

This was an increase of 3,896 animals or 2.92% from 2014-15 when we received¹ 133,495 animals.

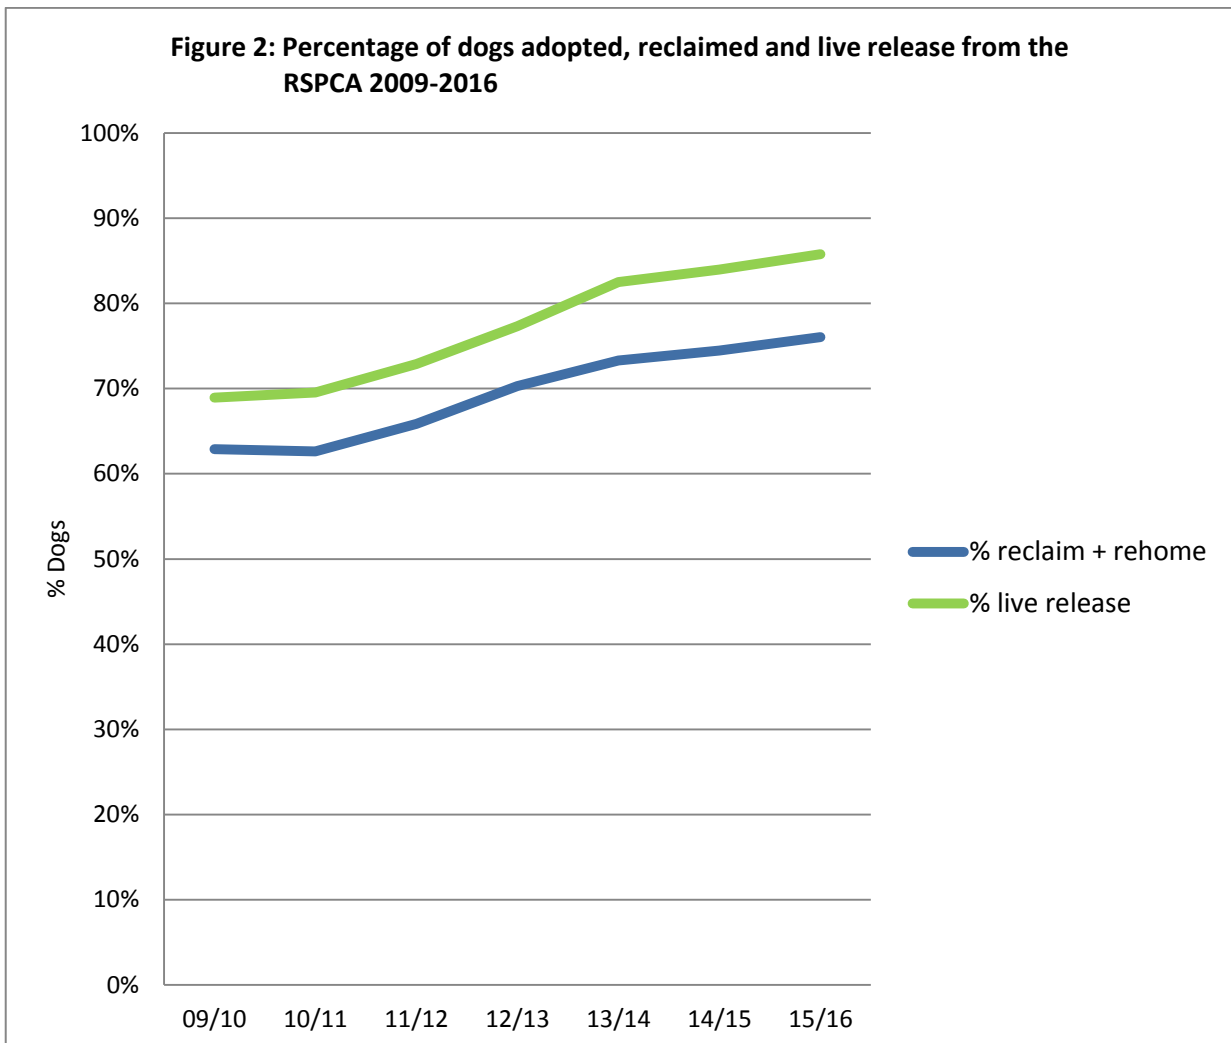

Note: The total number of animals coming into the care of the RSPCA can be influenced by many factors including the number of local council animal management (pound) contracts the RSPCA holds in any one year.

¹ Received refers to all animals in RSPCA facilities during the 2015-2016 financial year.

Dogs

During 2015-16 the RSPCA received¹ 45,256 dogs and achieved the highest adoption/reunited with owners rate to date with 76.03% of dogs being adopted or reunited with their owners (see figures 2, 3 and 4).

An additional measure for monitoring change over time is the live release rate (LRR). The 2015-2016 LRR for dogs was 85.77%, which is an increase of 1.78% compared to the previous year. The LRR is the percentage of dogs that were adopted, reclaimed by their owner or transferred to a rescue group or other non-RSPCA facility as a percentage of the total number of dogs received (not including those currently in care or categorised as 'other') for the 2015-2016 financial year.

¹ Received refers to all animals in RSPCA facilities during the 2015-2016 financial year.

Figure 3: Outcomes for dogs 2015-16

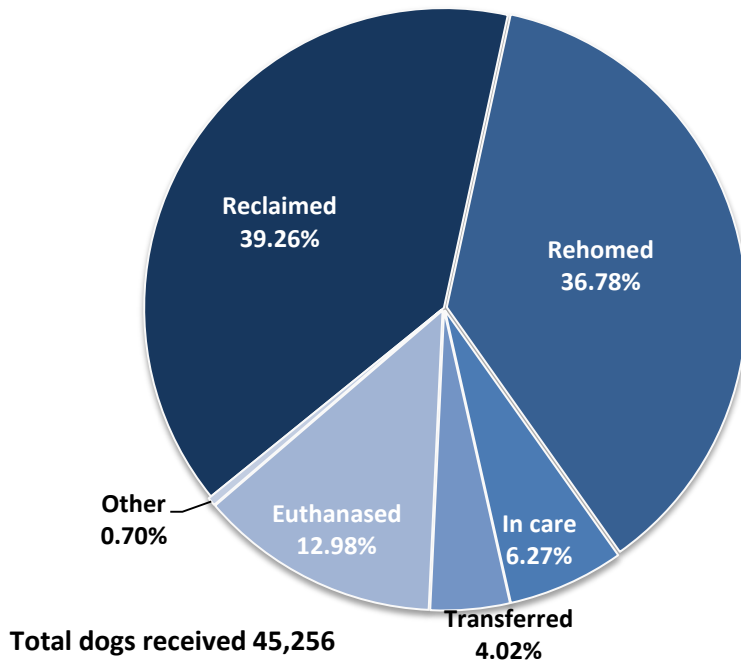

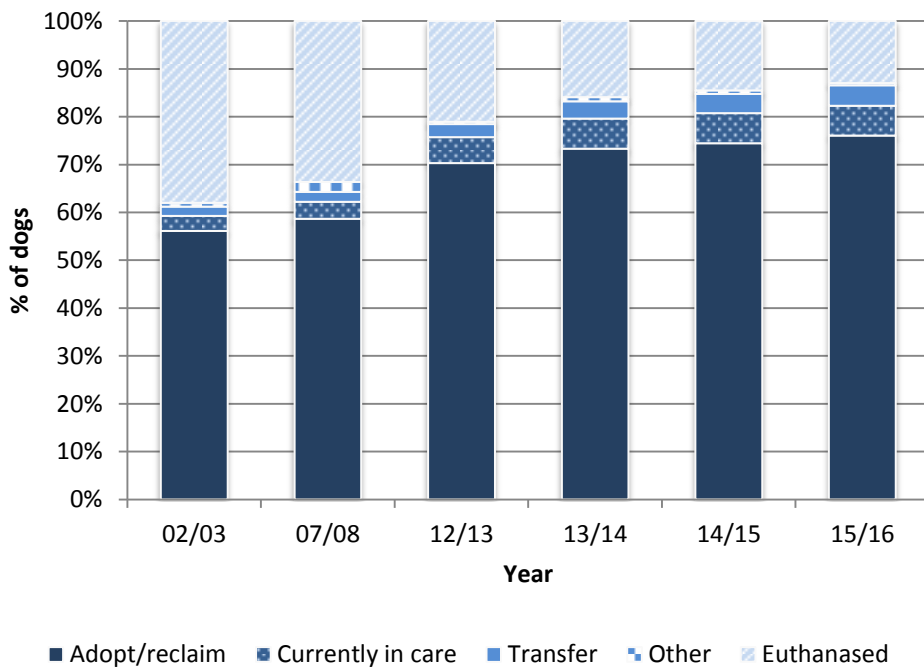

Figure 4: Outcomes for dogs selected years 2002-2016

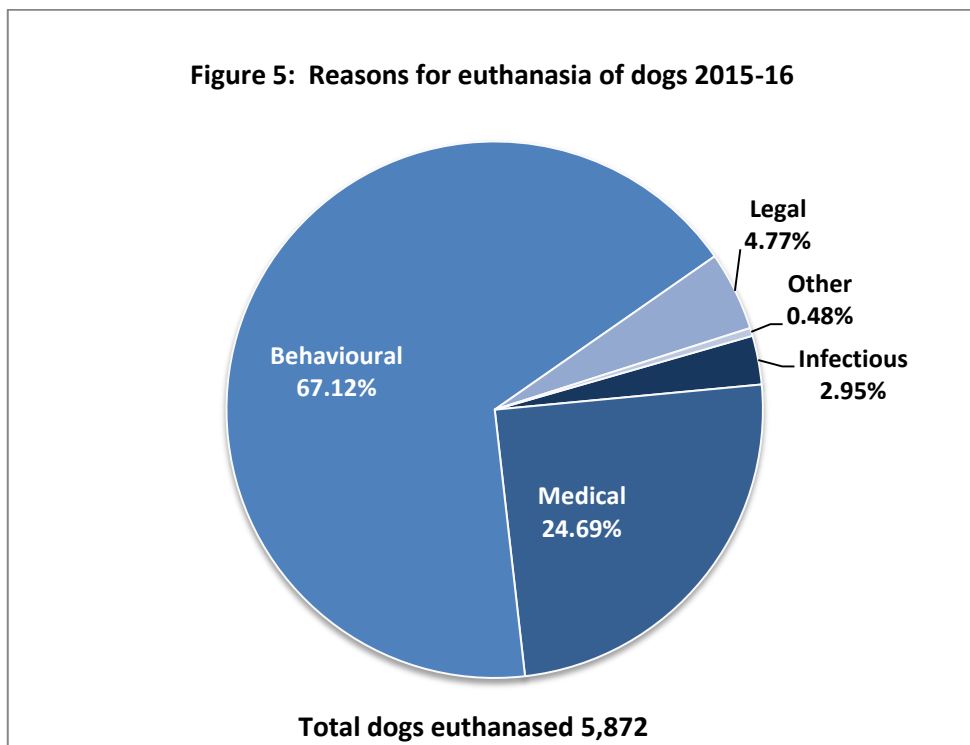

Many more owners reclaim lost dogs from the RSPCA than they do lost cats (17,766 or 39.26% of dogs compared to 2,594 or 4.67% of cats).

The increased use of microchip identification for dogs supports reuniting lost dogs with their owner; while this increase in adoption and reuniting with owners is also the result of our proactive tracing services, promotional, care, and rehabilitation activities leading to a decrease in euthanasia.

Sadly, 12.98% (5,872) of dogs/puppies were still humanely euthanased (see figure 5). We remain focused on adopting all animals that are suitable for adoption.

Of dogs euthanased, the majority of cases are because of severe behavioural issues (67.12%). This includes aggression and severe anxiety that the RSPCA is not able to or has not been able to treat through behavioural modification programs. Such issues can compromise the dog's welfare and quality of life and can be a safety risk to adults, children and other animals.

Cats

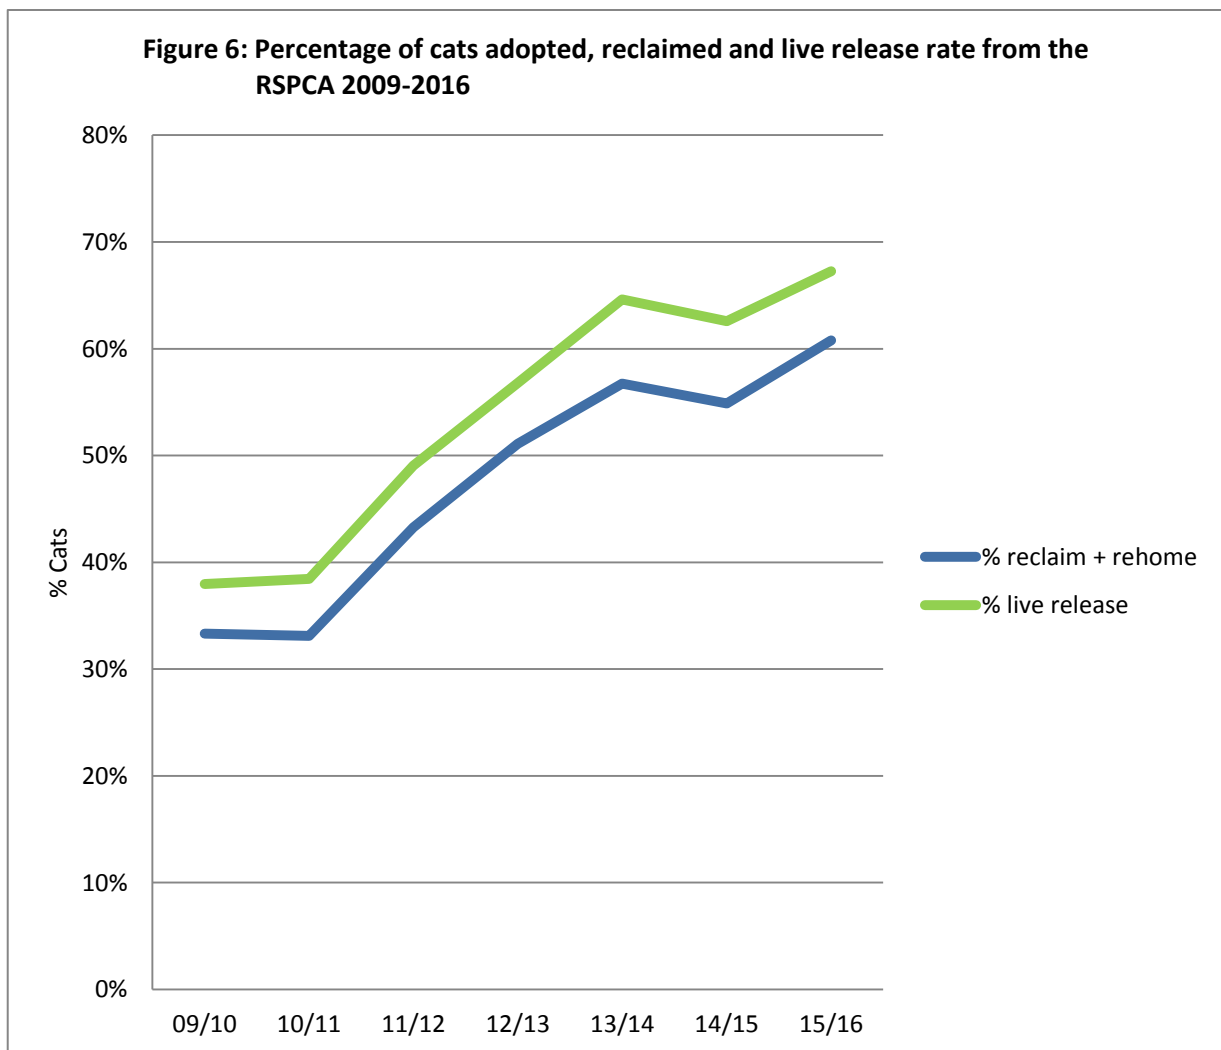

More cats and kittens have been adopted by the RSPCA and reclaimed by their owners this year than in any previous year, 33,772 cats (60.77%), reflecting the success of new adoption approaches and programs (see figures 6, 7 and 8).

There has been an increase of 4,804 in the number of cats and kittens adopted by the RSPCA and reclaimed by their owners this year when compared to 2014-15.

An additional measure for monitoring change over time is the live release rate (LRR). The 2015-2016 live release rate for cats and kittens was 67.24%. The LRR is the percentage of cats that were adopted, reclaimed by their owner or transferred to a rescue group or other non-RSPCA facility as a percentage of the total number of cats received¹ (not including those currently in care or categorised as 'other') for the 2015-2016 financial year.

Despite more cats and kittens being adopted and reclaimed than in any previous year, unfortunately, 29.61% (16,205) of cats/kittens were still humanely euthanased (see figure 9).

With the increasing uptake of microchip identification for cats, we are hopeful to see an increase in the number of lost cats that are reunited with their owners over the coming years.

¹ Received refers to all animals in RSPCA facilities during the 2015-2016 financial year.

Figure 7: Outcomes for cats 2015-16

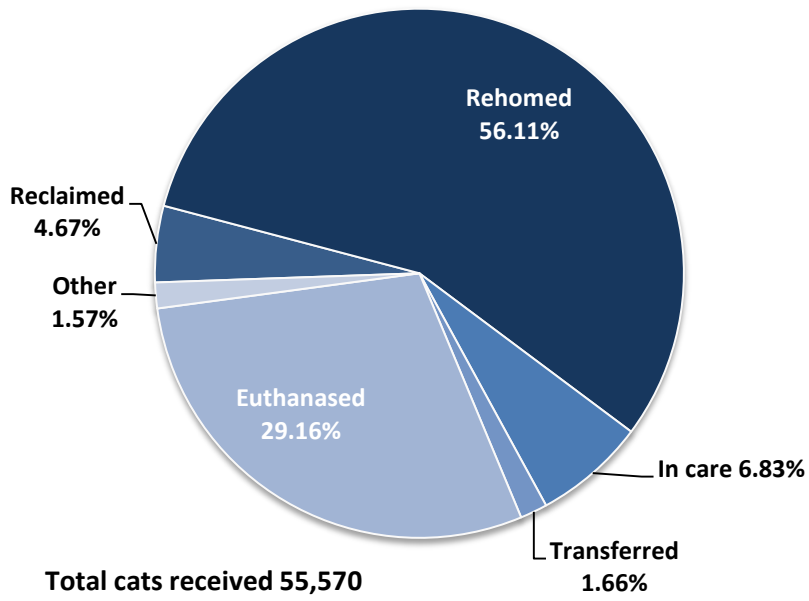

Figure 8: Outcomes for cats selected years 2002-2016

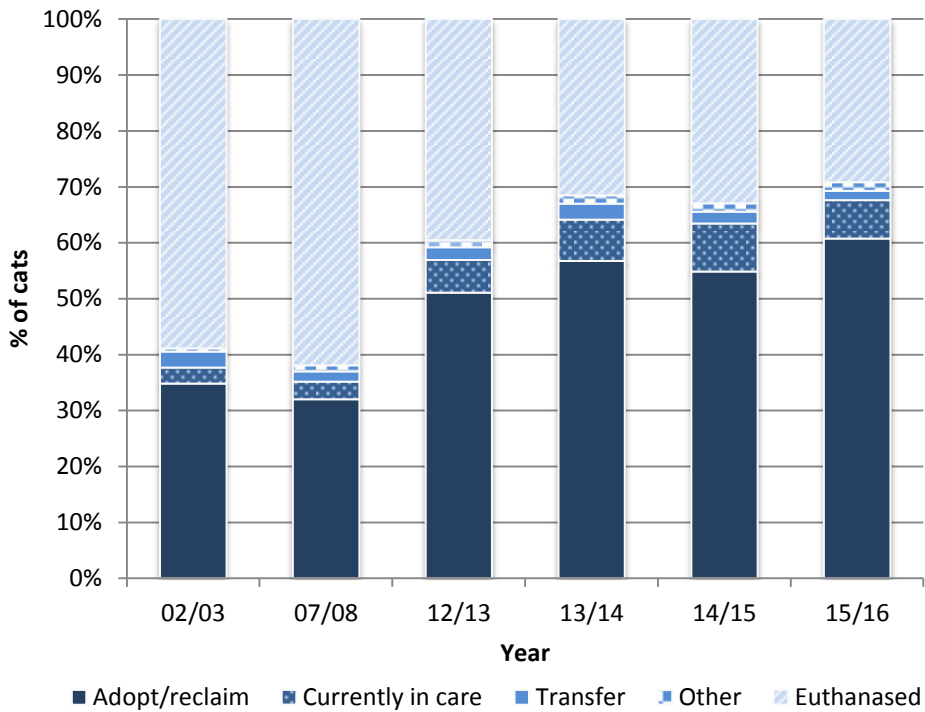

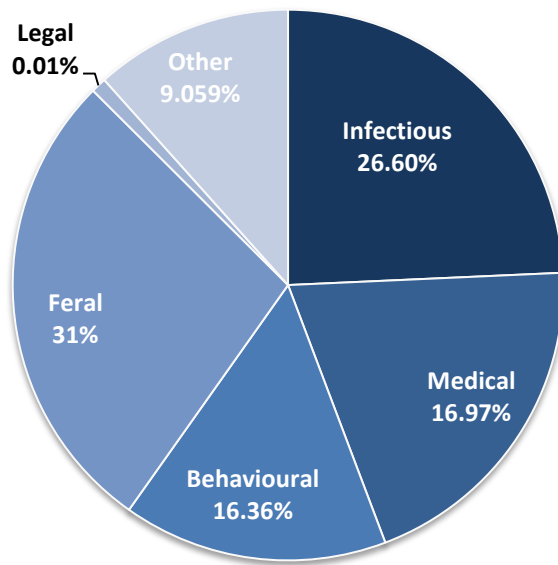

Figure 9: Reasons for euthanasia of cats 2015-16

Total cats euthanased 16,205

Wildlife

The number of wildlife presented to the RSPCA has significantly increased since 1998/99 (8,310 animals in 1998/99 to 25,568 animals in 2015/16).

Usually, wildlife (native and introduced) is presented to the RSPCA by members of the community and private veterinary clinics because they have been injured or orphaned. RSPCA ACT and RSPCA QLD operate specialist wildlife clinics and receive, treat, rehabilitate and re-release wildlife.

In 2015-16, the RSPCA re-released 13.1% (3,347) of wildlife received¹ following treatment and rehabilitation and transferred 6,824 (26.7%) to specialist groups or other non-RSPCA facilities. Unfortunately, many of the injuries can cause significant pain and suffering and/or compromise survival in the wild and the RSPCA plays an important role relieving this suffering through humane euthanasia. In 2015-16, 52.8% of all wildlife received was humanely euthanased (see figure 10).

¹ Received refers to all animals in RSPCA facilities during the 2015-2016 financial year.

Trends by state/territory RSPCA

Dog adoption and reclaim by owner rates by state are shown in figure 11 and live release rate by state in figure 12.

Note: Some RSPCA facilities may have a larger proportion of animals currently in long-term care which can influence the adoption and reclaim rate.

¹ RSPCA NSW does not include Council animals for FY 2011-2014.

Figure 12: Dogs - live release rate from RSPCA 2009-2016

¹ RSPCA NSW does not include Council animals for FY 2011-2014.

Cat adoption and reclaim by owner rates by state are shown in figure 13 and live release rate by state in figure 14.

Note: Some RSPCA facilities may have a larger proportion of animals currently in long-term care which can influence the adoption and reclaim rate.

¹ RSPCA NSW does not include Council animals for FY 2011-2014.

Figure 14: Cats - live release rate from RSPCA 2009-2016

¹ RSPCA NSW does not include Council animals for FY 2011-2014.

Cruelty complaints

Separate to the RSPCA's adoption and advocacy work, the RSPCA's 98 Inspectors are authorised by the various state/territory governments to enforce animal welfare legislation (except in the NT, where enforcement is the sole responsibility of the Northern Territory Government).

In 2015-16, RSPCA Inspectors investigated 62,714 complaints of cruelty reported by members of the public, the majority of which were in relation to dog, cat, horse and livestock welfare. This is an increase of 1,905 from the previous year. In addition, RSPCA Inspectors revisited 8,174 complaints/incidents.

This year, the RSPCA laid 1,963 charges and finalised 259 prosecutions of which 250 were successful.

END REPORT